“ Yesterday I set out Moma Earlene's coffee cup. Every morning around 5:15 I would hear the hall light flip on and I knew it was time for Moma Earlene to start her day. I would go turn her oxygen up so she would not struggle to breathe while she went to the restroom, then I would lay out her medicine for the day along with her breathing treatment medicine. After she made it to the kitchen I would fix her a cup of coffee then help her to the back living room for her treatment. After that we would go back to the kitchen and I would get her the paper, as she looked over the paper I would fix her breakfast and while she was eating I would finish getting ready for work. By that time I would have about 15 minutes until I had to leave but never one day did I walk out that door without telling Moma Earlene that I loved her!!!! RIP Moma Earlene!!!! I didn't do these things for her because I felt that I had to, I did them because I loved her so!!!! I am going to miss her more than anyone knows!!!!
