“ Glenda was my delightful aunt. We took cake decorating classes together. Then she started baking cakes for family and friends. She even took advanced class, where she learned to do wedding cakes. When my sister married she did an elaborate wedding cake for her. Later she did candy making, with a sweet memory of my spending 2 days with her teaching me her techniques. Of late we would go get our pedicure s together. Then when John and I would visit she would tell us stories that would be funny yet so detailed of times past. Loved her dearly and will miss her.

“ Ms. Miller started taking me to church with her when I was maybe 4 years old. I loved our Sunday morning drives to Fairview Heights, our chit chats, the breath mint she would give me when we got into the sanctuary for service and the occasional scoop of ice cream from Baskin Robbins we would stop and get from time to time. As I grew, she became like a grand mother to me and also a very dear friend, who I've spent HOURS talking to, laughing with and learning things when she would let me help with some of her many treats she would make. I remember the very first birthday cake she ever made me. She had a grand daughter who when she'd visit, she once had a small kiddie pool and let us swim together in her back yard. Many times, Alisha and I would have the same birthday cake as each other. The first i remember was Strawberry Short cake. But there were many others. Holly Hobbie, Mickey Mouse, etc.... eventually the neighbor that always had treats when I visited and all, grew into one of the best friends I ever had. I look back on the hours I and my kids have spent in both her kitchen and living room, watching her get tickled at so many things, my oldest baby on Halloween trying to open the doors on her coffee table dressed as a Dalmatian, shelling peas on her porch and him biting one really made her laugh so hard..... she would bake cupcakes and invite my daughter, son and nieces to decorate them for Halloween or Christmas or other special occasions... She was a part of so many memories of my life, I honestly could never list them all. Today most people know their neighbors as just someone they see in passing. They never get to experience having someone like her as a neighbor! I am so glad I had her out of every other person in this world. She was truly one of a kind.

Jeff, honestly she was the best friend I've ever had. I told her many years ago she was more a grandmother to me than my own had been. I remember when daddy was making cabinets for mawmaw. His hand got caught in a saw and momma had to take him to the hospital. She made laid out quilts on the living room floor and my brother, sister and I stayed with her while they were at the emergency room. Growing up in that neighborhood, with her and sweet Mr. And Mrs Butterworth was one of the greatest blessings I have ever had.
