“ I met Kristy and the kiddos when she came to Iowa to visit an "old friend" and she touched my life tremendously and was a friend from the 1st hey how was your drive. My heart is absolutely completely broken for this family and for my own selfishness of seeing her live life and give me encouragement on being a mother of a teenager via Facebook! You didn't have to know her well for her to impact your life. The love she has for her kids is that of her own life. She would move mountains for them both! May Savannah and Jesse always know their mother is for ever with them and watching down on them and she is the reason they are who they are. 💜❤️🙏 Y'all are always welcome back to Iowa if needing to escape!!

“ When I first met her, her love was Roger the Denali and years later it is Bo(?) the Ford. She treated me like family and had an amazing personality. I remember the strength and miles she went for her babies. Always had a smile and a positive mind on everything! Around this time last year Savannah, her, and myself were eating Shaggys on the beach just a few days before she left for home in Alabama. She loved the beach, day or night, that was her happy place. She treated me like a daughter and I will forever thank God for giving me the chance to meet such a great person. I'll never forget the time she chewed mine and Jesse's butt for scratching up Roger! HAHA. I love her like a second mom and wish I could thank her one more time for everything she did. It is crazy to think I met her 4 years ago and I knew I was never more than a phone call away.

Momma Kristy, I love you and will forever have you in my heart. All this is still a blur but I know God has his reason. You fly high beautiful and I'll be soaking up the sun for you in Pensacola! You're my beautiful angel!

“ Dearest Kristy, now I understand why you were so fanatical about documenting your life thru books of written notes and millions of pictures. Your family and friends will be able to see your lives together thru those pictures and remember the times thru your writing. I always thought you should be a professional writer and photographer. Funniest time to us (but maybe not to the man involved at the moment) was when you snapped a picture while standing behind the electrician with his hands in the switch box and he thought he was electrified. Always documenting everything; ) He laughed afterward and we realized probably wasn't best time for a flash shot. I enjoyed the years working with you, though you could try my patience sometimes I'll admit, but can't we all. I think you were homesick too much after Marlene passed in 2011, and even after talking about moving home I didn't want to let you go. I'm sorry I talked you out of it for so long but glad you finally realized it was time. Though you loved the beach I think that country girl was missing mud and mayhem and Jesse and family and... Anyway girl your memories (and little notes;) are still all around the office and your presence will live on in your friends at the Pensacola Police Department and our space, Property Management or PMS as we use to jokingly call it. Love you friend.
