I taught with Peg at Belleville Junior High School. In fact, we were each other's support since we were both single and pretty much social outcasts. There was not much for us to do. We consumed enormous amounts of pizza at Pizza Huts Monday night buffet, did a Saturday day trip to Myrtle Beach and got sunburned. The thing i member most vividly is is she would call me after school daily and always do something zany. One time she called, and when I picked up, she immediately began singing Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy from Company B. I let her sing the whole thing and then I hung up. She immediately called back wanting to make sure I was the one she did the song for. I was laughing so much she knew. She was always doing stuff like that. I have missed her often and hate that when I finally a found a connection, it was too late. My condolences to all of you.
