

Marion Cook Lippincott McDowall

January 19, 1927 - April 9, 2019

Marion Cook Lippincott McDowall, age 92, of Oxford, passed away on April 9, 2019 at National Health Care.

Survivors include her daughter, Gail Kochie (David), grandsons; Andrew Kochie, Matthew Kochie (Christy), great grandchildren; Grace, Lila and Alexander.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Alexander McDowall, sister, Doris Surette, parents, Stacy and Mabel Lippincott.

Marion grew up in the rural village of Crosswicks, NJ with her parents Mabel and Stacy Lippincott and older sister Doris. She married Alexander McDowall in August 1948 and lived along the Delaware River in Roebling, NJ until they moved to Oxford, AL in 2007.

Marion was secretary to a school dietitian and had also worked in the office of a department store. She was actively involved with the Roebling Trinity United Methodist Church organizing bazaars, working breakfast and dinners, and singing in the church choir. She also worked school bazaars and sang in the community choir. Late, when Gail started high school she became a school bus driver for 15 years before retiring.

Marion and Al loved to travel and have visited almost every state. After retirement they enjoyed taken organ lessons as well as going on several cruises and camping in their motor home with her father and grandson, Andy and Matt. In their early years they enjoyed visiting beaches on Long Beach Island and later Cape May, NJ. She enjoyed doing crafts, needlework, crocheting, knitting, sewing, jigsaw puzzles, playing cards and games. Marion especially enjoyed from visits from her great grandchildren.