“ Mary and I were always very close growing up. I thought there was no one like my big sister. We were so close that whatever she got I felt like I had to have the same thing. For several years at Christmas I had to have a doll because she got one. We were also the best of friends. We very seldom argued or fought like most siblings do. She was the best!!!!

Your smile is truly something special, it carries this natural warmth that instantly makes everything feel lighter, softer, and more beautiful. There's something so genuine and effortless about it, the way it lights up your face and brings a calm, happy feeling to anyone lucky enough to see it. It's the kind of smile that doesn't need to try too hard, yet it leaves a powerful impression that stays in the heart. There's a quiet magic in it, the way your eyes shine along with it, the way it feels so real and full of life. It's not just attractive, it's comforting inspiring, and deeply captivating in a way that words can hardly explain. Honestly, your smile doesn't just brighten your face, it brightens moments, lifts moods, and leaves a lasting glow that makes the world feel a little more beautiful just because of you. 💖✨

“ My Mom (Mary Poore),

My Mom was a very unique person. My memories from childhood years consist of her doing her best with what she had. She started out as a single mom with 4 small children, (a 1 year old and 3 newborns triplets) in the back section of our grand-parent's home. A few years later She moved to a small home down the street taking care of everyone else in the home ahead of herself. She always made sure everyone was fed, clothed, and comfortable. Once we were a little older: she worked outside the home while she diligently maintaining her home to try and make sure to make ends meet. During our later teen years she met, fell in love, and married a good man, Danny. She was the happiest I ever seen her during their marriage. They loved and grew old together for over 50 years. They had everything they needed to keep them comfortable, content, and happy. I was always very happy for them. They really seemed to complete each other.

I can think of many memories from childhood to adolescence, all the way through my adult years. As with almost every family, there were many life events where things went well. Also, there were situations where things could have gone differently as well. One thing that I cannot and would not change is that Mary Poore is my mother. She did it her way, the best that she knew how.

Now that my mom has passed, I know that based on previous conversations with her that she did not fear death because she told me so. Even though I will miss her in this life, I find comfort in knowing that she was content and happy.

I Love you Mom

Your Son,

Jerry

My Mom (Mary Poore) was a woman that had 4 babies and Her Parents in a small house lots of bottles, diapers etc and other family members where we lived then after Mom married she cleaned, cooked some wonderful meals etc and She taught us to help around the house , doing chores etc...She got on to us when we misbehaved we had to pick our on switches when we mis behaved and she kept a switch out on top of the refrigerator to help remind us to do the right thing and she sewed a lot of our clothes took us grocery shopping and if we're good she let up pick out a toy a piece we played and done other things . They carried us to Church too. We loved our Mom despite any thing . She would say I wish I had done some things different with you kids don't we all say that. She kept saying I have always loved you kids and I said Mom I know despite anything it was there whether things were always handled right or not and Her last words were Love you if I don't see you anymore here I'll see you in Heaven where she is now she had favorite songs like How Great Thou Art! Beulah Land, He came to Me and so many More. Love you Mom! We'll see You again!

I always loved Mary. What a sweet, funny person she was, and she now looks on the face of a sweet Jesus and is getting caught up with Danny and Betty.
