Phillip was a welder, and a carpenter. He loved to build. When he didn't have a construction project, he would always tinker. He tinkered with antique cars, motorcycles, and other things. He enjoyed road trips, and gambling or playing cards for a little fun. He was an adventurer at heart and was able to see several parts of the world while serving in the United States Army. Playing music was a constant throughout his life. First playing for himself, and eventually playing for God. Phillip was dearly loved by his family and will be truly missed.

A special thank you for all of the love and support to Eula Mae Robinett, Tim Hall, and David Reaves.
