devoted, dedicated, nourishing and loving mother to their special needs son. She never complained about the situation and always said, "He was the one missing out on life." She was a loving and wonderful sister and an especially fun aunt to her nieces and nephews. She played the piano by ear and could make a piano come alive with music. She had a beautiful alto voice and sang with a quartet at funerals and at her church. She grew up attending McCoy United Methodist Church in Anniston and attended the Oxford Church of Christ with her husband during their many years of marriage. The staff at NHC Place (assisted living) and NHC Healthcare (nursing home) always talked about how sweet she was and how much they loved her.
