“ Moma words will never describe the pain the guilt and regret that fills my soul right now and since u have been gone, I hope to one day be able to ask u to forgive me for everything that I've put u through, I hope that you know and did know how much I did love you and how unbelievably hard this has been since ur passing, I keep asking myself could have I done something to stop this or maybe she was hiding something I never knew I know u would have hidden things to keep me from having to endure the pain of knowing , if I could trade places with you I'd do it no questions asked. Our relationship started off rocky but I've watched u grow in so many ways even tho having to deal with and come through so many life's struggles ,you have show me what a truly strong wonderful woman u were deep down i couldnt have asked for a better bestfriend than you. I will forever remember all the times we sat here and laughed together n the times i made u mad by laughing at you lol I still can't get it through my head that ur not coming home or ur not just at the grocery store, I sleep in ur bed and am doing the best I can to take care of ur things and animals just like you would have made me. Not having u to turn to for answers or advise how to do things like u would have done them is basically all I know to do, im trying hard im struggling so bad emotionally trying not to break down and lose it grieveing the loss of a mother isn't all I lost to me you were my everything and I hope to be all that for my daughter as u have been for me. Give or take a few bumps out the road in between , I feel like I'm all alone in this world now I know u were ready to get some rest but this is definitely not what rest I was expecting. I know u didnt really want to go just yet because of the grand babies , u always said how much u couldnt wait to just be done with life period but I knew better i know u wasn't ready yet. I pray u forgave me for not being right there beside u that day u got sick i honestly had tried so hard to do the things y wanted of me, taken care of you wasn't no where near of a struggle as loosing you. My hearts bleeding it's not broken it's scattered into million pieces that can't be mended. I'll never forgive myself for letting u down and I want u to know y wasn't alone this last time in the hospital I was right there the whole time in ur heart. I hope ur at peace now I hope heaven knew what they gained and it's got to feel great knowing that u never have to worry about a thing ever again, struggles r over now ,..I love you unconditionally I'll be patiently awaiting the day we are back together again..

“ Sheryl Carmack you will be missed by many especially me,gurl we have had some good times within the 20 years our friendship has lasted and will last in my heart from now on NEVER think that you didn't do your part here on this earth as far helping our fellow man because you over did that part by supplying food and a warm place over many peoples heads through out the years and there was many and I know for a fact that you knew the true love of Jesus Christ because I have personally watched you set down at the dinner table with your JUDAS!!!!!!That alone proved you knew the true love of Jesus Christ ,there's not many people that can do that!!!!And Sheryl i tried to light a purple candle for you on this sight and it wouldn't post no matter what i did,Did you keep blowing it out Sheryl???is that why it would not light ??lol I bet that was it for sure.i love and miss you and you will forever be in my heart.i will see you again one day at least i know your at peace now which was something you longed for so bad especially in the last year!!Well you finally got it Sheryl but I wish it would have been different way where I could have watched you enjoy the peace of mind that you longed for but that wasn't my choice that was GOD'S choice so who am I to question HIS choice....NOBODY...so that choice I will have except whether I want to our not,but we will meet again someday!!!!
