“Cousin- I was so very shocked and sorry to hear of your illness and that you had passed from this life. I know that this life was certainly not easy for you. When I remember you, I remember you most fondly when you were a teen and I was just a little girl following you around during each visit that we got to have. I loved playing games with you; I can remember playing cards, pick-up sticks, playing on my little toy sewing machine, and making jewelry out of beads that you tried to sell me! ;) I remember rides in the back of the old pick-up truck, penny candy, and climbing the fire tower together and you teaching us “100 Bottles of Beer on the Wall” which we sang the whole way home. (Aunt Faith would not have approved!) I remember the big huge purple snake that you gave me to take home after one visit, and I kept that baby in my closet until I was way too old! I loved just talking to you because you made me feel like I was valuable even though I was so much younger than you were. I loved rolling around on the grass with you and flying high up on your feet as you lay on the ground and took me for a ride. I loved playing Mother, May I? and Red Light, Green Light with you. And, you know, I ended up teaching my kids all of those same games when they were little and have even laid down on the floor and taken my grandson for a ride on my feet already. And I can think of more, but this seems like a good place to stop.

My thoughts and my prayers are with the entire family as you all mourn this shocking and unexpected loss. I pray that God will surround you all, fill you full, and wrap you up close in His powerful love, comfort, and peace.

With love, Dana

“ Tracey is my sister and what a sister she is. Growing up when mother and dad had to work and what not she would be charge of the cousins and siblings. Growing up was never easy but she often made it an adventure and even would have participate with some childhood acting for fun. I don't know anyone else who was able to create a story for us kids to play out. It was often surreal and fun. She was good at making crafts such as egg ornaments, bubblegum wrapper chain, fancy bead bracelets, and all kinds of other things. She was very good at making friends and she has very many friends. We all had adventures often and would run around Saks and even Crystal Springs. She managed to get me to shed fear of heights, roller coasters, and social situations and even taught mother how to cook bacon all the way through without burning it. Even during tough times, she was always to the one would deal with things that would send other kids into a full-blown panic. Even though she struggles with things she was always a stand-up sister and friend to many and mother to JC. She will be missed by so many people. With mucho love.
